

Job Opportunity in Russia

(with Language Link and Russian Language Undergraduate Studies Ltd.)

Language Link Russia has a position opening for an International Programmes Assistant in August 2017.

Based in Moscow, the role essentially has two parts. The first part is the position of a teacher-intern. This entails teaching English as a foreign language for nine months following a four-week intensive TEFL training course. Teaching hours will be limited to 24 academic hours per week. To read more about the teacher-intern programme and the training course, please visit http://jobs.languagelink.ru/jobs/internships/programme_overview.php

The second part is providing pastoral care to British undergraduate students on Russian Language Undergraduate Studies (RLUS) courses in Moscow, Yaroslavl, Volgograd and Tver. This includes working with the directors of the centres to ensure that everything runs smoothly, and responding to any student problems or emergencies throughout the duration of the course. To read more about RLUS, please visit www.rlus.co.uk.

The ideal applicant would: be confident speaking Russian, have various experiences in and relating to Russia, be organized, be able to communicate well with other departments.

Benefits of this position include: free TEFL course with certificate issued on completion of the nine-month contract, salary paid twice a month, taxes paid to the Russian government by the company on your behalf, accommodation provided free during the nine-month contract (costs $600 during the training programme), basic medical cover, flight and visa costs reimbursed at the end of the contract, and full academic support and training during the year.

If this sounds like something that you would be interested in, please send an email requesting more information and an application form to jobs@languagelink.ru.